Hi Marcel, One of my friends owns an older style 34" Pegg Putter I putt like a tour pro when he's kind enough to let me use it. After seeing me sink 6 to 10 footers all day with his putter, I'm sensing he's growing tired of sharing. Is this model still in production and if not, can I custom order one?

Thanks so much for your help. Mike

Hi Marcel,
Got my newest version PEGG PUTTER yesterday, thanks ! Went today Saturday for my first practice. You won't believe this, but within 2 minutes of being on the practice green at Walt Disney World Palms Course, aligning behind the ball , as recommended, I was complimented by the starter, who asked what kind of putter it was. Ten seconds later a mini-tour pro player came over and asked "would you mind if I tried it out?" He aligned from behind, and sunk two 10 footers and gave it back me. I told him your story and suggested he look it up on your website. We then were off to the 1st tee and were paired with a local husband and wife couple. I hit a good approach and was about 8 feet out and made the putt. The husband says to his wife, "well honey, that looks like a great Christmas present". We talked about your story again! You can't make this stuff up! I putted very well and made 3 birdies. I struggled a bit with lag putts, but I am confident that will change with time and getting use to the difference in weight and speed control.

Needless to say, I am extremely happy with the putter and the "buzz" that it seems to generate. It's a lot of fun!

I'll stay in touch and keep sending people to the site.

Best, Mike

Dear Marcel ,

Yes, please feel free to publish my comments. If I would've known that, I would have spent more time with a "spell checker and grammar checker". I believe I wrote that previous email prior to my morning coffee. Ha!

We played again yesterday and I sunk a bunch of putts! One of them was on a Par 4 where my approach shot was a sharp breaking 12 footer. I aligned carefully from behind, and sunk the putt and unbeknownst to me, there were many people enjoying Easter cocktails on their vacation home patios. They all starting clapping! I kissed my putter and thanked them. I told them how I loved my new Self-Standing putter! I think I draw the added attraction, because I set it up and then I walk behind the putter to check my line. This really gets people watching.

I think your idea to give a Pegg Putter to a Pro is great. As I am sure you know, timing is everything when changing putters. If he/she just missed the cut due to his poor putting, they're usually open to change. I'd like to get some of your business cards someday. I'll hand them out when I get a mini-tour pro interested or even just a fellow golf enthusiast.

So the fun continues! I'll stay in touch.

Mike

Hi Marcel, I received your business cards in the mail the other day. Thank You!

I have to tell you another quick story. My friend and I (fellow Pegg Putter owner Sridhar) played at Disney with a visiting Doctor (Doc) friend, again last week. I was experimenting with a new swing thought and missed almost every green on the front side. As horrible as that sounds, I walked off the front 9, 2 over. I one putted 6 times! Doc couldn't believe it! He said he's never seen 2 amateurs putt so good! To top it off, I got to the sixth hole on Lake Buena Vista and hit a horrible T shot. I knocked it back into play and hit my approach shot 30 feet from the hole. I sank the putt for par! One of the guys in the group behind us watched me knock it in and game up to us on the next tee and asked to see the putter. I referred him to the website. Sridhar, (who got to know Jeff Pegg when he purchased his Pegg Putter many years ago) was again amazed that I was getting so much attention with the same putter! We were laughing about it.

Like most amateurs, I still have my good days and bad days on the greens. But, with my new Pegg Putter, the good days are incredible, and the bad days are better than most. And yes, I couldn't agree more. McIlroy was the odds on favorite. His putter totally let him down. One of the added benefits of the Pegg Putter is it's added head weight. It's heavier than most, requiring you to swing the putter head with rhythm and thus eliminating a hit motion. He totally lost his rhythm on the greens.....and I lost a few dollars betting on him : ( lol

All the best Marcel,

Mike
